Advice for food retailers

COVID-19 is a respiratory illness and can be caught by anyone.

Any food handler who is unwell should not be at work. Ensure that you and your employees wash their hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds, especially after being in a public place, blowing your nose, coughing, or sneezing.

Social distancing measures apply to everyone. You need to minimise opportunities for the virus to spread by maintaining a distance of 2 metres between individuals. This advice applies to both inside the food business and in the external public areas where customers may need to queue.

To help you maintain social distancing guidelines in your premises we have created a range of posters to display. Additional measures include:

- Additional signage to ask customers not to enter the shop if they have symptoms
- Regulate entry so that the premises do not become overcrowded
- Use a queue management system to limit crowds gathering at the shop entrance and maintain the 2 metre distance
- Reminding customers to only buy what they need
- Use floor markings inside to facilitate compliance with the social distancing 2m advice, especially at crowded areas such as the tills
- Use vertical signage to direct customers into lanes to facilitate movement within the premises while maintaining 2 metre distance
- Make regular announcements to remind customers to follow social distancing advice
- Place plexiglass barriers at tills and counters if feasible
- Encourage the use of contactless payments where possible
